St. Louis, MO — The Mid America CropLife Association (MACA) honored several industry, media and academic leaders at its recent annual meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

The CropLife Ambassador of the Year Award was first presented in 1993. It is designed to recognize an ambassador for their efforts in promoting the crop protection industry through presentations to students or consumers. This year's recipient is April Riley, Farm Manager at Riley Farms, Harrisonville, MO.

April made 4 presentations to 251 students this past year, for a total of 13 presentations to 841 students since becoming an ambassador in 2013. Her presentations are unique as she adds demonstrations and extra visuals for the students to learn.

Raised on dairy and beef farm in Southwest Missouri April grew up actively participating in all aspects of the family farming operation.

She received her Bachelor of Science in Agriculture Studies from Iowa State University. Currently, she lives near Harrisonville, MO with husband Tim Riley and two children.

A photograph is available from the MACA office upon request.

The Mid America CropLife Association (MACA) is a non-profit association of manufacturers, distributors/formulators and allied industry of crop protection products in 13 Midwestern states. MACA works to research issues relating to crop production and to work together to improve the crop life cycle, via health, safety and public education. Check our web site at www.maca.org.
